

I've suddenly realized that something very like the distinction I make between the perspective from which theology is done and the perspective on which it is done (Notebooks, 12 December 1990, October 1992) has to be presupposed when Bultmann distinguishes between "presuppositions" and "prejudices" in interpretation.

21 November 2004