

God

Why does Whitehead say that God originates from the conceptual pole, rather than, as is true of all other actual entities, from the physical pole?

It would appear that Whitehead's motives here are not different from Hartshorne's in denying that God is an empirical fact, or in affirming that God is the one metaphysical individual.