

I find it interesting that Hartshorne speaks at one point of "the relational structure apart from which no conceptions can have meaning" ("Religion in Process Philosophy": 255).

In my view, it is the business precisely of metaphysics, which is to say, a strictly transcendental metaphysics, to explicate and formulate this "relational structure."

1 February 1998