

We ask intellectual questions because we ask existential questions and want our answers to them to be valid.

Similarly, we ask theoretical questions because we ask vital questions, both existential and intellectual, and want our answers to them to be valid.

27 March 2004